Natasha Bedingfield, one of the singers performing at Saturday's "A Capitol Fourth" concert on the Mall, landed in town on Thursday. The British chanteuse had lunch at Art and Soul with her sister.

She was wearing a low-cut, V-neck black dress with a gold fringe necklace and sunglasses on her head, she asked to be seated by the window and dined on a crabcake appetizer and rockfish with Chesapeake jambalaya.

And the cast members of "Real World D.C." officially moved in today. Their first stop in their new city: the liquor store.
